

Dragonfly

By Georgia Heard

It skims the pond's surface,
Searching for gnats, mosquitoes, and flies.
Outspread wings blur with speed.

It touches down
And stops to sun itself on the dock.

Wings flicker and still:
Stained-glass windows
With sun shining through.